SPEYSIDE . 1893

2017 EDITION

DAVE…. WE SALUTE YOU!

People have always drunk whisky neat […] it is just one of the few myths that have sprung up around whisky, revolving around how to drink it, when to drink it, at what age you can start to appreciate it, and what sex you have to be.

These need to be swept away, because when you examine them they are all negative.

None encourage people to drink whisky, they only give reasons why NOT to drink it.

Now, I'm not a marketing expert, but that doesn't strike me as a particularly clever way to try sell yourself.

Dave Broom
Whisky: The Manual

Our heritage at The Craigellachie is steeped in whisky.

In 1866, the Strathspey Railway became part of The Great North of Scotland Railway, which was followed by the building of several distilleries along the line including Craigellachie Distillery. The construction of the railway was fundamental to the future success of the whisky industry in Speyside but more importantaly to the growth of the tiny hamlet of Craigellachie.

Craigellachie Distillery, now owned by John Dewars & Sons, was built in 1891 by Alexander Edward and Peter Mackie. Edward was a visionary and one of the most legendary and enigmatic distillers of the late 1800's.

After the completion of the distillery, Edward went on to build several villas and soon realised that there was the potential of turning Craigellachie into a destination getaway. He became determined to create a first class hotel – The Craigellachie.

And he didn't stop there.

He then went on to establish Aultmore in 1896 and Dallas Dhu in 1898.

IT'S AS AULD AS YE!

We all know that every day we're getting that little bit older... the two day hangovers, the head rush after you've stood up too fast and those faint cracking noises from your knees that seem to be getting louder each day.

But it's not every day that you get to taste a whisky that was distilled the same year you were born and enjoy something that has aged as wonderfully as you have..

Today could be that day.

"I like my whisky old and my women young." - Errol Flynn

"The Cocktail" rose to prominence in pre-prohibition America, with the first documented definition referring to the creation as a "stimulating liquor, composed of spirits of any kind, sugar, water and bitters".

In 1893, The American Bar at the Savoy in London introduced cocktails to Europe and a number of legendary hotels the world over quickly followed suit.

Hotel bars were truly responsible for the world's first romance with cocktails and with this in mind, The Quaich Bar team has hand picked a list of classic libations from legendary bartenders and thrown in a few contemporary creations of their own.

THE whisky CLASSICS

QUAICH CHAMPAGNE COCKTAIL {£18.00}

The classic brandy based champagne cocktail is the epitome of elegance. We take Apricot Brandy, bitters, brown sugar, ABERFELDY 12 for a highland twist and top up with champagne.

OLD FASHIONED

As cocktails became more desirable, the tried and trusted recipes laid down by luminaries such as 'Professor' Jerry Thomas and legendary Scottish bartender Harry MacElhone made way for intricate creations; curaco, absinthe, and a range of other liqueurs were added by adventurous bartenders. The result? Swathes of people asking for drinks to be made 'in the old-fashioned way' - spirit, sugar, bitters and water.

Our hotel team personally recommend:
AUCHENTOSHAN three wood {£10.95}
COPPER DOG {£6.95}
LAGAVULIN 16 {£10.95}
WOODFORD RESERVE {£9.95}

MANHATTAN {£9.95}

GLENDRONACH 12 and Italian vermouth, together with a dash of bitters, are carefully stirred over ice to give you this sweet classic.

CHURCHILL {£9.95}

Joe Gilmore created this drink in honour of Sir Winston Churchill, by carefully mixing his favourite dram - JOHNNIE WALKER black label - with lime juice, triple sec and vermouth.

SAZERAC {£9.95}

The Sazerac was created in 1838 by Antoine Peychaud in New Orleans. Originally a cognac based drink, it was made using Peychaud's very own family bitters recipe and served in an absinthe rinsed glass. At the end of the 19th century cognac was less readily available, so the base spirit changed to American Rye whisky.

BLOOD AND SAND {£9.95}

MACALLAN gold and Cherry Heering are matched with Italian vermouth and orange juice. This drink was created for the premiere of Rudolph Valentino's bull fighter film, of the same name, in 1922. The red cherry liqueur representing blood and the orange, sand.

"Sometimes life is sad. You can cry into your booze, if you want. I think that's called a Whiskey Sour." - Jarod Kintz

THE gin CLASSICS

RAMOS GIN FIZZ {£9.95}

Henry Ramos created this classic in New Orleans in 1888 but kept the recipe under lock and key until the prohibition. We've used TANQUERAY with double cream, egg white, lemon & lime juice. The story goes that he made the formula widely available as an act of civil disobedience, encouraging the public to learn this concoction at home. Saying this, the cocktail is known to traditionally be shaken for 14-15 minutes with 6 bar "shakers" to each bartender.

GIMLET {£8.95}

Having been the preferred antiscorbutic of the British Navy in the 19th century, this cocktail is simple in its creation - we use DAFFY's gin and lime juice. Simple.

MARTINI {£9.95}

The quintessential gin drink, we stir our Martini's in the traditional manner.

Our hotel team personally recommend:
NO.3, dry vermouth, grapefruit twist
EDEN MILL oak, dry vermouth, blue cheese
HENDRICKS, elderflower liqueur, dry vermouth, cucumber
FIRKIN islay cask, dry vermouth, lemon twist

WHITE LADY {£9.95}

TANQUERAY, triple sec, lemon juice, gomme and egg white. This version of the classic White Lady was created by Harry MacElhone in 1923 at his own Harry's New York bar in Paris, France. According to Joe Gilmore, this was one of Laurel and Hardy's favourite drinks.

NEGRONI {£8.95}

Named after Camillo Luigi Manfredo Maria Negroni (don't expect us to repeat that!) this drink was created when he asked bartender Fosco Scarselli to fortify his Americano (Campari, Italian vermouth, soda) with gin. Obviously you would get rid of the soda. This is a favourite amongst bartenders - let's be honest, only good people like Campari - and for this classic we've used EDEN MILL hop.

CORPSE REVIVER #2 {£9.95}

BOTANIST, dry vermouth, triple sec and lemon juice served in an absinthe rinsed glass. First recorded in 1930 by Harry Craddock this perfectly balanced concoction of dry, sweet, sour and bitter was regarded as the "hair of the dog" that would cure you of your hangover. Move over Irn Bru.

"I must get out of these wet clothes and into a Dry Martini" - Mae West

OUR bar TAILS

KING OLIVER {£9.95}

A twist on a Ramos Gin Fizz, this cocktail uses TIA MARIA as it's base rather than gin which we've named after the famous New Orleans jazz musician, King Oliver. We mix this classic with Cherry Heering, lime juice, double cream, egg white, orange blossom water and top with ginger ale.

SMOKIN' KINGS {£9.95}

Taking inspiration from King Edward VII who was notorious for smoking a copious amount of cigars a day - we've paired wisps of sweet smoke from SMOKEHEAD with a refreshing citrus burst of Kings Ginger (created to revive and stimulate the King), triple sec, orange juice and egg white for a velvety texture. Turns out ginger and smoke are the perfect pair - no wonder he never stopped.

CHARTREUSE SOUR {£8.95}

We take a classic sour recipe and use green CHARTREUSE as the base to create this delicious herbal number. You've got to try it…it's the best thing since bloomin' sliced bread! Plus..it's herbal…it's good for you…right? Throw away that peppermint tea now!

LITTLE RED CORVETTE {£9.95}

This is not sacrilegious…it's just pure deliciousness. ABERLOUR 10, cloudy apple juice, raspberry syrup and elderflower liqueur topped with prosseco. Ps. We love Prince.

STORMS AT DUSK {£9.95}

Looking for something different? GLENFIDDICH 15, triple sec, chamomile syrup and grapefruit juice served over an ice shard of frozen berries that will create a fruity sweetness as it melts. Enjoy as it changes into something completely different with each sip.

BELLE EPOQUE {£9.95}

Inpsired by the Golden Age of the French Revolution known as La Belle Epoque, we've used PATRON ANEJO, green chartreuse, elderflower liqueur, orange bitters… boozy goodness.

I love Scotch. Scotchy, Scotch, Scotch. Here it goes down, down into my belly." - Ron Burgundy

THE GOLDEN OLDIES {£21.25}

STRATHISLA 12/ GLENTURRET triple wood/ TOBERMORY 10/ BOWMORE 18

It's amazing to think that there are some distilleries still standing since the 1700s…here is a selection of some of the oldest established distilleries in Scotland. May they continue on for many years to come and continue to teach us all a thing or two about tradition.

WHAT'S IN A NUMBER? {£19.20}

GLENROTHES bourbon cask reserve/ KILCHOMAN machir bay/ ABERLOUR a'bunadh/ LAPHROAIG quarter cask

When did we get so caught up in concentrating on the age of a whisky? More and more non age statement whiskies are hitting the market so join us in a re-education of what whisky is really about – flavour.

AGES OF THE SPEY {£49.85}

Balmenach 12/ Aberlour 18/ Glenrothes 2001/ Tormore 12

The region has gone through four distinct evolutions each of which produced a different style of whisky. The flavours started heavy and ended light. An evolution in liquid. Here we take a journey through those eras from 1824 to the 1960's.

CHEESE

CLAVA BRIE & GLENMORANGIE 10 {£5.00}

This smooth and creamy brie will lift out the sweetness of the citrus and the creamy notes in the whisky.

PARMESAN & GLEN GARIOCH 12 {£6.30}

This whisky will bind the dryness of the cheese whilst bringing forward the sweet fruity flavours and clear barley notes. Slight jabs of saltiness.

APPLEWOOD & LAGAVULIN 16 {£7.50}

This pairing will get you hooked onto peated whiskies - the applewood compliments the nutty and oily texture of the whisky and the creaminess helps smooth the smoke.

STRATHDON BLUE & BALVENIE 21 portwood {£16.40}

A contrast in flavours yet a perfect pair - the red berry sweetness of the whisky cuts through the salt of the cheese. They compliment each other with their mellow creamy textures.

TAIN CHEDDAR & GLEN ELGIN 12 {£5.50}

This smooth yet strong cheddar will bring out the creamy and nutty notes of the whisky.

CIGARS

BOLIVAR no 2 {£20.00}

We suggest pairing with TALISKER 25

Full bodied. Big, uncomprising smoke with an abundance of spice and pepper.

COHIBA robusto {£25.00}

We suggest pairing with GLENMORANGIE signet

Medium/ full flavour. Chocolate and hazelnut notes with a hint of cinnamon spice.

MONTE CRISTO open master {£25.00}

We suggest pairing with GLENFARCLAS 15

Light/ medium flavour. Mild woody flavours, hints of oak and dried red fruits.

Being home to over half of Scotland's Distilleries… it is impossible to pigeon hole this region.

SPEYSIDE

The Scotch Whisky Association divided Scotch whisky into five regions in order to create understanding and education of the different aromas and flavours created by distilleries.

These regions however are arguably no longer followed as a guide by many.

Speyside, for example, has many guises such as malty, fruity, fragrant, sherried, meaty and smoky. This is to be expected of a region so small yet jam packed with distilleries.

This can be confusing for some, yet frankly, life would just be a little bit boring if they all tasted the same.

Covering a vast area of Scotland from Stirling to the western Isles to Orkney, this is the largest whisky region in Scotland.

HIGHLAND

This also includes the Island whiskies due to them not being officially recognised as a region of its own so, understandably there is a vast array of whiskies.

Typically you will find fruity aromas in the southern distilleries, a peaty taste in the west, the northern ones often have a spicy taste and to the east they tend to be sweeter and smoother.

The Highlands were initially separated from the Lowlands by a political line (an imaginary line from Greenock to Perth) designed for tax purposes. At one point no Highland whisky was allowed to legally cross the line.

ISLAY

Home to arguably some of the most famous distilleries in the world.

Islay whiskies are best known as “a real man’s drink” so ladies – it’s time to grow some chest hair (apparently). Typically known for burning peat in their maltings you’ll find an array of smoky aromas from tobacco to bonfires alongside medicinal and earthy notes, however, some are sweet and fruity (for the real men).

Convinced that Islay's aren't for you?

Why not try a Lagavulin 16 with coca cola… Yes, it's a thing.

And no, we're not going to apologise.

There are only four working distilleries left in this region.

LOWLAND

Records show that there have been 215 distilleries producing whisky in the lowlands since 1741. Chances are that this does not include all the illegal stills.

Distillers earned the region a bad reputation in the 18th and 19th centuries by flooding the market with poor-quality spirit.

Already impacted by the rise in popularity of blends – suffering in comparison with their more 'characterful' Highland rivals – Lowland malt distilleries were dealt further blows by tax hikes, the First World War and the onset of Prohibition in the US.

A handful survived and produce the perfect aperitifs - light and balanced with citrus, cereal and grassy notes.

Once upon a time this region was the whisky capital of Scotland with over 34 distilleries at one point.

CAMPBELTOWN

A thriving region for Scotch whisky, these distillers became greedy and mass produced whilst also cutting corners at a difficult time with Prohibition in the US. Consumption massively declined.

Blenders also stopped favouring the whiskies produced in this region and Campbeltown disappeared as a prominent whisky region almost overnight and by the end of the 1920's there was only one distillery left in production.

But don't worry, there are three distilleries now producing five fantastic and distinctive whiskies. Hurrah!

SINGLE GRAIN

Grain whisky is usually seen as less characterful whisky when compared to a single malt.

Don't compare the two however and in reality the much loved blends rely on the distinctive characteristics of these grains.

Each grain distillery creates their own unique style.

BLENDED MALT

Some of the most innovative whiskies currently on the market that give many distillers and blenders free reign to play around and challenge the way we look at whisky.

There is no limit to how many malts you use - Monkey Shoulder consists of 3, The Hive from Weymss uses no fewer than 16 and our very own Copper Dog uses 8 Speyside malts.

Why not try our Copper Dog with Madagascan cola or ginger ale? Or you can buy a bottle for £27.95

The bread and butter of the Scotch whisky industry

BLENDED SCOTCH

Approximately 90% of Scotch whisky sold globally is blended scotch.

Blends are notorious for being consistent which takes skill and time to perfect.

Blenders don't simply stick to a recipe. They need to understand flavour, have detailed knowledge about distilleries including how each spirit reacts to wood and to also constantly know what whiskies are available to them. They need to be able to adapt in an ever changing industry.

Distilleries come and go, yet some of the most famous brands of blended scotch have been on the market for over 100 years and blenders of today are challenged to recreate those very blends possibly using different malts and grains to what their founding blender used.

Most of these blending pioneers were grocery and wine merchants. Andrew Usher, John Walker, John Dewar and the Chivas Brothers to name a few.

The great thing about whisky is that everyone has a different journey with it. We all have our own unique experiences therefore we pick out flavours and aromas differently.

Has there been a whisky that you've really enjoyed on your visit to The Quaich?

Why not add your own tasting notes to our menu and perhaps help our next guest choose their next whisky…

…and remember, there is no right or wrong answer.
