Single Malt Whisky

Norton House was once owned by Andrew Usher, who was one of the founders of the North British Distillery. He was chairman of the company until his death in 1898 and is considered to be the founding father of today's Scottish Whisky Industry. His Company produced a whisky called Ushers OVG (old vatted Glenlivet).

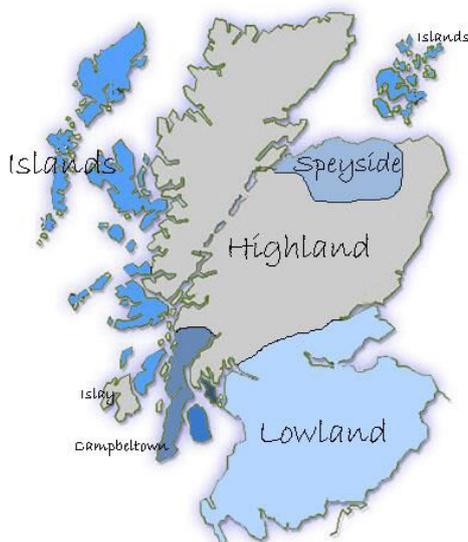

Vatted whisky is made from a blend of single malts, unlike Scotch or blended whisky which contain a mix of grain and malt whiskies together. In the early days of mass whisky production, blending the malts together allowed the maker to smooth out the rough edges, so to speak, producing a more palatable and consistent spirit to drink.

His partners at the North British Distillery were John Crabbie of Crabbies Green Ginger and William Sanderson of Vat69 Scotch.

Shortly before his death he donated £100,000 to build a concert hall in Edinburgh. The Usher Hall opened in 1914 and is one of Edinburgh's outstanding performance spaces much praised for its acoustics and architecture.

Oddly enough before his death Andrew joined the Temperance Movement. This led to a ban on alcohol being sold in the Usher Hall, which was ironic as the hall was built with excess profits he made from selling whisky.

Without him and his pioneering efforts we wouldn't have our beautiful hotel or the whisky that we fill it with.

Whisky Regions

All whisky served as 25ml or multiples thereof

Speyside Single Malt Whisky

Speyside whiskies are among Scotland's lightest, sweetest single malts. Age often brings a bit more body and the profusion of heavily sherried whiskies from the region exhibit superb power. Though a comparatively small appellation, Speyside has, by some distance, the vast majority of Scotch whisky distilleries. Indeed there are eighty-four working distilleries, including the world's best-sellers: The Glenlivet, Glenfiddich and The Macallan.

Lowland Single Malt Whisky

Whiskies from the Lowlands tend to be light and gentle. The single malts are usually quite dry. Peat is very rarely used. The single malts are soft and delicate and triple distillation is practiced, indeed it is for this that the region is known. There is very little salinity and plenty of floral notes and balanced fruit

Auchentoshan	12 year old	£5.60

Auchentoshan Three Wood		£8.30

Auchentoshan 1973	32 year old	£35.00

Glenkinchie	12 year old	£5.60

Island Single Malt Whisky

The Islands is a diverse region, though the single malts are usually rather rich. Smoke is a recurring theme, as is balance and richness. There is often a good peat, salinity and counteracting cereal sweetness. There are no hard and fast rules for the Islands, for the terroir and production methods differ greatly between distilleries.

Islay Single Malt Whisky

Single malts from Islay tend to be the most pungent and peaty of all Scotch whiskies. This is particularly true to the south of the isle, where peat smoke is rife, as is tar and salinity. Further north there is not quite the peaty intensity; instead there is often plenty of fruit and refinement. There is always a good degree of balance, wherever one is on the isle
